

DESKTOP SERVICES

Companies today are dependent on the efficient distribution of information. Business success for most organisations can be correlated to the effective and reliable operation of its computing environment.

Many companies can overlook computer downtime and the effect it can have on profitability. It can cost your company thousands of pounds a year in lost revenues, user salaries and server outage costs when the computers your staff rely on don't work.

take a new approach...

Imagine having the resource of fully trained support staff with an in-depth working knowledge of your data structure, but with no overheads, no extra training and at less expense than an in-house IT manager. MCSP can provide that vital link and control your costs.

We believe there is no substitute for a well designed and well supported desktop environment, so whether you are updating existing hardware or trying to optimise your daily operational support, MCSP understands your needs. We can successfully integrate existing and new technology by applying our broad technical expertise, tailored for your exact requirements.

expert support done your way

Our approach to desktop solutions enables enhanced security, service improvements and technological flexibility and our fully trained professionals can design, build and optimise desktops to meet your local, regional and global requirements.

Our simple pricing structure will help you to plan and budget for the future. We offer a responsive service and support on demand, so you pay only when you need us and our clients only have one place to call for problem resolution.

MCSP can offer a full range of uniquely tailored desktop services and problem solving resources. These solutions combine years of proven experience, certified processes and consistently high quality service.

At MCSP, we believe that the job is not completed until the customer says so. Be this one day, one week or one month, our team of dedicated experts are here to provide you with the best in customer care at any time of the year.
